TO PATRONS AND CORRESPONDENTS.

For the long and generous patronage which has been extended to the Farmer's Almanack, the Editor would express his renewed obligations. The present number, he hopes, will be found no less deserving than that of any former year.

C. W.'s favor was not received till that part referred to, was in the printer's hands; it was immediately forwarded, and will be corrected if not too late.—He will please to receive our thanks.

F. R.'s Problem would have been inserted if it had been seasonably received.

C. T.—n's Paradox is thought to be rather trifling than otherwise—wants a point.

Mrs. S. B.'s Riddle is any thing but poetry—abounding in unhappy metaphors.—Hope she will excuse us—though not possessed of youthful gallantry, we should be very sorry to be thought wanting in politeness to the ladies!

H. H. M.'s lines are, for the most part, quite unexceptionable, but the subject is vague and indefinite—see No. 33, of the Farmer's Almanack, a very neat one on the same subject.

Friend Aldrich's "Query for Youth" would have been inserted if room had permitted.

Messrs. Norcross and Hallet's misunderstanding seems to be in Mr. N.'s misconception of the question.

BED-BUGS.—A housekeeper of Boston asserts that a strong decoction of tobacco, or tobacco juice, is a most powerful remedy against this troublesome insect.

Ye smokers, chewers and sniffers, think of quaffing bed-bug poison when regaling your senses on this nauseating weed!--Ed.

BY THE REVISED STATUTES OF MASSACHUSETTS,

All wills must be signed in the presence of three witnesses. This is a great change, and ought to be universally made known. Hitherto, a will of personal estate could be made with one, or two, or no witnesses at all. Probably there are now many wills on hand that have not three witnesses. All such are bad. When a man has made his will, he may seal it up and leave it at the Registry of Probate, for safe-keeping, for one dollar fee. A man's wearing apparel, if not worth more than one hundred dollars, is not to be inventoried, nor his wife's, whatever the value. A widow may live forty days in the house of her deceased husband, and be supported there, out of his effects.

Any person who shall be guilty of the crime of drunkenness, by the voluntary use of any intoxicating liquor, shall, for the first offence, be punished by a fine not exceeding five dollars; and for any like offence, committed after the first conviction, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars, or by imprisonment in the house of correction for a term not exceeding three months.

M. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	2	Circum. Very cold.	Ho! friends of the mattock and crow-bar, here we meet again on the old business, cheerful and happy, it is to be hoped, and under pleasant and prosperous circumstances. Tom Clover, I rejoice in being able again to visit your domicile, and to witness the prosperity of an honest, industrious farmer. Why! you look as bright as a new-coined shilling. Affairs must have gone successfully with you for the year past.—Let's see;—if I do not misremember, you married one of Farmer Butterfield's daughters;—ay, by my troth, she was a gentle damsel! Here we have plenary evidence that a notable wife has the charge of in-door matters. Here is a place for every thing, and Mistress Dorothy Clover is not forever fretting, because things are out of place; but she makes a business of keeping her house in order. "Nabby, my daughter," said she, "if you have milked the blue heifer and fed the ducklings, you must go see about the kitchen and the cookery, while I am at the dairy. But, mind me;—don't you leave business for the foolish prate of Ned Rattle." This is a very appropriate nickname of Farmer Littletop's spoiled child, a conceited noodle of the village, a sort of a false pumpkin-blossom, promising no fruit, and as useless as the fifth wheel of a coach. But look at Tom Clover's barn; you find it a model of neatness and order.

The months called winter disappear,
But wintry weather tarries still ;
The fields abroad are quite as drear
As when old Boreas raged at will.

M. D.	D. W.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	5	St. David. Unsettled	I said something last year about insurance. I hope I was understood ; but yet there are some people who will ever construe a line in the manner best to suit some purpose of their own. Well, then, it is to be expected indeed, that even my little Farmer's Calendar , as well as the works of Milton and Shakspeare, must be subject to the criticism of learned twistifiers and astute argufiers. But, come on, Mr. Smartly ; we must give our minds to business, and let the grog-shop lingo go to the winds.— Appropos , wind indeed it is. Now let us be splitting the pine wood or cutting the hard wood, remembering all the while that economy in this matter of fuel must be practised ; for those great devourers, the steam-engines, will, ere long, strip the country of its fire-wood, and then we shall all be in an ague fit. How spends your hay, Capt. Lavish ? A little bit of a pinch is not unusual about these times ; and he that makes calculation on that account is seldom sorry for it. Remember the saying of Shon-ap-Morgan, the Welsh preacher—"He that has a coot take heed is the bether af." It is requisite that farmers have a good take heed above all men, as their hope is in the clouds and the sunshine, in the rain and in the fair weather. Their crops are uncertain, and all the fair promises of plentiful harvest may end in blight and mildew. Then look to the ides of March.

Money makes not so many true friends as it makes enemies.

The frost begins to leave the soil,
Though eastern winds incessant blow;
Yet some, inured to healthy toil,
But little inconvenience know.

M. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	G	5th S. in L. Fine,	Now, to work, or not to work,—that is the question. Shall a man, pretending to be a farmer, disdain to dirty his hands, and give the whole business to servants, by which means he is sure to come out at the little end of the horn? Or shall he , himself, take hold of the plough, and guide it on to prosperity? Shall he be at the head of affairs, handling his tools without mittens, and trusting not to proxy? I tell you what, friend Long-acre, he is a true farmer who bones down to the work himself, puts his own shoulder to the wheel, and recoils not from the tug of business. It will never do to depend altogether on other people. There is a great cry about help , and the expense of it; but let a farmer help himself, and cultivate no more land than he can well manage with the help of his family; let him give his boys, if he have any, a proper education, a farmer's education, nor foolishly suffer them to im-bibe the false notions that some have, viz., that it is ungendermanly to know how to handle a hoe or a pitchfork, and that a young man's good reputation depends upon the fit of his dickey, or the shape and trim of his whiskers. Get them up early, and inculcate habits of business rather than money spending. Let them know that they were not made in vain, but must work out their own salvation.

While some for high distinctions aim,
And thirst for office, wealth, and power,
The honest farmer lays no claim
To such vain bubbles of an hour.

M. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	3	S.J.C.Ip.&Sp.St.P.&J.	What of the farmers' daughters? Are they to sit in idleness, while their mothers are busy about the affairs of their families? Are they to be indulged in the notion, that they will find no sweethearts, if they are seen milking that odious creature, the cow? Are they to be made to believe that it is disreputable for a young lady to earn her living? that industry and gentility are incompatible with each other? that the fingers of the fair were only made to sport a cambric needle, or to tap the keys of a pianoforte? (Apropos , what senseless stuff do these melody-squeakers bring forth, and call it music !) Tush! let a farmer's daughter be fitted for a farmer's wife, and then she will do for a nobleman. By no means would I have the cultivation of her mind neglected; but the fashion of keeping a girl at school all the time is a most miserable one; for the preceptress, or school dame, is generally a despiser of common sense, and would think it degrading in a lady to know how to cook a dinner of pot-luck. Do not take offence, my fair pedagogues; I would by no means offend true delicacy. But, tell me, seriously,—do you not think it an indictable offence for any one to talk, before the ladies, about fried pork and parsnips, bean porridge and buttermilk? Look to your daughters, ye mothers, who have had experience, and know well the truth of what is here laid down.

If a man cannot find ease in himself, it is vain to seek elsewhere.

The gorgeous sun, with radiant light,
 Illumines nature's ample space,
 And cheering prospects greet the sight,
 Arrayed with dignity and grace.

M. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	6	Nicom. Rain in	Hail, lovely, lovely June! fairest month of all the year. It is full of promise, full of beauty, full of pleasure. The verdant lawns, the busy laborers, the feeding cattle, the robin, the thrush, the bobolink; and then the inimitable flute bird, the Catalini of the forest; these and a thousand other charms make this month the queen of the year.—“Pooh! towsh!” says farmer Glumkin. “This is all galish nonsense and fashionable humstrum. I had rather have one month of September or October, when the crops come in, than a thousand Junes; and I would’nt care a tarnel cent if your June was struck out of the calendar.” So it is, and so it will be; we cannot all think alike. Some will look at the beautiful impression upon a golden coin, and admire it, while others, totally reckless of external beauty, regard nothing but its solid contents. It is well that we are not all scrambling for the same thing. What say, ye of the brotherhood, did any of you get into the rubbers? Did any of you, in your longing to grow suddenly rich, cast your net into the fish-pool of speculation, and draw out nothing but crabs and pouts ? Hah! far better had you been cutting fagots with a bill-hook, or raking polypod in the bog lands; for then you would have remained within the boundary of your occupation.

How sweet to walk the pleasant fields,
Where sparkling dew-drops hail the morn,
The new-mown hay a fragrance yields,
And thrifty looks the dark green corn !

N. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	G	3d Sun. p. Trin. Fine.	Pretty dull doing, Capt. Trudge, aint it? you are poking in the dirt here quite alone! Your boys, that used to be knocking about upon the farm, and making it shine, I am told, are gone to the far west. A pretty piece of business this! They want to live easy; and so they leave father and mother, and this beautiful homestead of 300 acres, a plenty for them all, and hie away to the country where but a little labor is required in cultivating the earth, and where there is more time for pitching quoits, swapping horses, and lounging at the grog-shop. The good old New England habits must be given up, and new notions and views of things are to take place. Well, never mind, Capt. Trudge, experience will do its work, and your boys will be satisfied, we hope not too late, that exertion is necessary to the attainment of wealth, wisdom, and happiness; and that an industrious farmer is as honorable an appellation as is conferred upon any one. But here is land enough and enough. The worst on't is, our young men have a silly notion that dress makes the man. Rig up—trig up—sprig up! O, what a pity to be obliged to put such delicate fingers into the dirt! To dig, to rake, to mow! to wield a crow-bar! perchance to lug a hog-pail! What if my father, and my grandfather, and great-grandfather, were farmers. I'll never wear a checkered frock:— "I'll be a butterfly."

All fools are not knaves, but all knaves are fools

Now autumn pours her bounties forth,
 Removing all our guilty fears,
 Fills the desponding hearts with mirth,
 And every drooping spirit cheers.

M. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	7	Giles. Very	Crops, crops! what crops, Mr. Fair-soil? Now is the season to make glad the farmer, who has, day after day, toiled and sweat, that the earth beneath his hand might bring forth her wholesome fruits, and repay the laborer for his industry. Industry! ay, this is the farmer's countersign. Let it pass from man to man, from farm to farm, o'er hill and dale, and into every rural retreat. Have you been industrious, neighbor Stooks, and attentive to your agricultural concerns, or have you suffered the important opportunities of improvement to slip by? You may not be intemperate, you may not habituate yourself to grog-shop droning; still there are those who like much to be in other men's way, and hang about, and inquire after the news, while their corn-fields and their cabbage-yards are choking up with weeds. I hope you are not one of these, neighbor Stooks. O, neighbor Stooks, how pleasant a thing it is to be crowding the granaries at this season! "Fill high! fill high!" But, mind ye, this is not the echo of foul Bacchanal carousal, but the note of the farmer's glee at Harvest-home. Pile! pile! till the ridge-pole of your scaffolding shall creak, and the deal boards shall "gape into chinks" at the pressure. Heaven be praised for its blessings! 'Tis always the way on't;—he that works shall find his reward.

The seasons all around proclaim,
That God is wise, and kind, and good;
All else may change, but he's the same,
And has been since creation stood.

M. D.	W. D.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1	2	C.P.Nant. Rain , ♂ ♀ ☿	Music has not much to do with digging potatoes or laying stone wall; but then a farmer may be musical in many of his operations. Capt. Tramp never can mow a rod without humming Washington's March; Deacon Cooley always drives his team to the tune of Old Canterbury; and my aunt Lois Waxworthy might as well give up the job, and not churn at all, as to think of going on in the business without her accustomed twang of Chevy Chase. The music of the farmer's boy is always pleasant, while driving his cattle to and fro from closure to closure. And there is the ever-cheerful milkmaid! Ay, many's the time that we have been charmed with her sweet notes, as she bore home the rich treasure from the bonny brindles, and squinting too across the hedge to catch a glimpse of her cousin Caleb.—Now, it is a very laudable thing to sing at church too, and to chant the high praises of Him who has prepared for us this beautiful world, with all its wondrous varieties. But there must be some system about this matter of singing in choirs. Grudge not the little expense there may be for instruction in psalm-singing. If your children have voices, it was intended that they should use them in this most delightful of all employments. What! shall not a farmer raise his notes of gratitude to Heaven! Yes, above all others, it is his bounden duty to express his thankfulness.

Sell not virtue to purchase wealth.

The frost has seared the pleasant green,
And stripped the foliage from the trees ;
The last wild fall-flowers lately seen,
Have fled before the northern breeze.

1	5	All saints. Very	Hah ! a load of wood brought into the village by Capt. Shirk ! A very fine load indeed ! " Pretty fair," as the saying is. " Not so very fair as you may be after thinking," cried Pat Sly. I then looked again more critically, and saw the deception. I found that Capt. Shirk understood the art of light and shade to perfection, and could so dispose of the various materials of a load of wood, as to make it a most imposing picture. Short sticks, cat-sticks, soggy sticks, and rotten sticks, he well understood how to arrange to give the desired effect. I imagined that I could see the captain giving orders to his men how to load up. " Peter, my son," said he, " we must make as much as we can of a load of wood these hard times. Jonas, arrange the long timber on the outside. See, Caleb, that front and rear look fair and handsome, for, you know, all must be fair, very fair in our way. Jehoshaphat, you know how to fill up in the centre. Let nothing be lost. We must be saving, you know ;—heh ? Saving, saving—cousin Jehoshaphat, for wood is wood now-a-days." Now, this load of Shirk-wood its owner intended to have sold for sound and solid, of full size and dimensions. I am glad that this same Capt. Shirk forms no sample of a true New England farmer. I hope our worthy yeomen practise all proper economy.

Once more we see the year expire,
With numerous blessings round us still;
Nor should we earthly good desire,
Beyond our heavenly Father's will.—J. W. D.

D.	M.	D.	W.	Courts, Aspects, Holidays, Weather, &c.	Farmer's Calendar.
1		7		High • Wind	Capt. Ploughbeam and Ben Barleycorn say, When shall we three meet again? When? ay, when? It may hap not again on terrestrial soil; for we "would not live away," and we are assured that in our Father's house are "many mansions," and, no doubt, kings, priests, nobles, and peasants, alike inhabit there. But, as we have now come to the very last sheaf of our binding, and the twilight of evening enwraps us, we will agree, if you please, to adjourn; and, Providence allowing, our next greeting shall be held at the happy fire-side of my well-tryed friend and fellow-wielder of the scythe and sickle, the honest, the hearty, the industrious, the faithful Tom Clover . But, mind me now, be not slack in well-doing in the mean time. If you should think proper to tip up a jag of fuel at the door of the Widow Needful, do not be so mean as to alloy your imagined generous deed with a paltry mass of shirk-wood . If your pity is excited at beholding the hungry, tattered, and destitute family of the improvident Bob Reckless, and your conscience urges you to some charitable act on their behalf, see to it, that your beneficence is essential , and that the sound of "tinkling brass" be surely not your object. Hark! Hug-purse begins to growl. He hates to hear so much on this subject, and draws the puckering strings of his money-bag closer and closer. My friends, good-by, with all my heart.

BREAKING VICIOUS COWS.

"An article is noticed in the Genesee Farmer, describing the manner in which a 'vicious or kicking cow' was reclaimed. Such instances are very rare; I have known many men to possess vicious cows for years, who never read nor never thought of their being reclaimed; it was the same thing year after year. Milking, as far as my experience has extended, is considered one of the most, if not the most, unpleasant chores there is to be performed about a family, and above all things, a kicking cow is to be dreaded. She is always worst in the worst weather, and one is in danger at every milking time of losing all the profits of his labor, unless he can content himself to go through with some operation of making her secure, where she can do no injury.

"I should be very much in favor of breaking vicious cows when it is practicable, but I believe the attempt is seldom successful. I think it is the best way generally to dispose of them for beef, unless a man has a very valuable one, which will well recompense the labor of keeping her. But such an animal as a kicking cow, a man never ought to raise—there is no need of it. If one necessarily comes upon his hands already made vicious, he is not to blame. I have long thought that there was a great defect in the mode which some farmers use to break their young cows. We never should undertake to milk a heifer out in the lot, or in the corner either of the open field or of the barn-yard, where there is any chance for her to escape, and oblige us to have a race before we can again go on with the operation of milking. One such attempt may spoil her for a gentle cow, for she will long recollect it, and will be doubly worse to manage the next time. I have heretofore passed by farm-houses, and seen two or three great lusty fellows at work in this way, paraded around a corner of the yard, each holding some sort of a cudgel in his hand, raised over the apparently harmless young heifer, while she stands to be milked, half scared, and trembling for fear of the expected blow. Now this is all wrong, and entirely unnecessary. They very much mistake the nature of the creature—she is not so to be tamed. It is the regular course to make her vicious and ungovernable, and it will need but a few such operations.

"I will suggest a plan which I invariably followed for four or five years with triumphant success, and when I changed my occupation, transmitted it to my successor with a special charge not to depart from it—during which time, and since which, (for I have been an eye-witness of its faithful fulfilment,) I did not know, nor have not known, one single subject of its operation, but what was, or has been, of the most harmless and peaceful disposition, so that a man and boy, woman and girl, all, could perform the task of milking with equal ease and in security, either as it respects themselves or their pails of milk. And in such a case every cow must not have her particular milker, whom, when he is necessarily absent, or in any wise rendered incapable of performing this his ordinary labor, it requires two or three a half of an hour with clubs and stones, racing to and fro across the yard, to obtain her milk, or else she must go unmilked until her former milker returns, or is sufficiently recovered to again enter upon his task. Drive the heifer and her calf carefully into the stable, tie one end of a rope loosely around her horns, fasten the other end firmly to some post or staple, giving her a short play, and there let her stand.—Mind and not take her into any strange place, where the cattle are not used to going. If she was accustomed to be led when a calf, she will stand still; if not, she will flounce around a short time at the length of the rope; but soon finding by experience that all is fast, she will immediately cool down. Then place before her a little mess, and commence milking while she is eating. Let there be no whip about—let there be no noise, and every movement gentle and still. When the operation is completed, carefully untie her and let her out. One person is sufficient; two is one too many, especially if she is a little wild. All it requires is a few more such lessons, and I have no doubt, with a proper milker, she will ever afterwards remain a gentle cow."—Genesee Farmer.

RECLAIMING WASTE LANDS.

When we look about us in different parts of the state, we cannot help being struck with the amount of waste lands on every side. These appear in shape of pastures grown up to bushes, in the form of swamps full of alders and birches, and in bog-land, which would bear excellent grass if the moss and the hard-hacks were destroyed.

Many who undertake to redeem some of their lands do it partially, and, as a consequence of not going thorough, have it to do over again every year or two. For instance, we know a man who has mowed or cut down his alders four or five times, and they as often sprang up, and soon gave him another crop. A better way to manage this kind of growth, is to pull them out by the roots by means of ox-labor. A chain put round them near the roots, and so fastened as to form a noose which will slip up as pulled upon, and a hand to bend the tops over the contrary way from which the oxen pull, will eject them root and branch; they never will start again. Another method is, to have a large iron hook made for the purpose; an eye may be made at one end, into which to fasten the chain; this may be hooked unto the roots, and thus they may be twitched out with ease and despatch. A yoke of oxen and a couple of hands will clear up, and most effectually too, a good piece in a day. In regard to bogs—after they have been ditched in a proper manner, so as to make them sufficiently dry, the application of fire in the spring will in a few years effectually clear off such foul stuff as encumbers them, and hinders the growth of better productions. In this way much of the waste lands which now disfigure the face of the state, and are comparatively useless, may be rendered smooth and profitable in a short space of time.—Maine Farmer.

WEANING AND REARING CALVES, BY AN ENGLISH FARMER.

Mr. B. weaned and reared on his farm of ten cows, ten heifers' calves, by the following method:—At three days old they were taken from the cows, put into a shed and fed with flet, (skimmed milk,) allowing three quarts to each calf morning and evening. When a month old they were fed with a like quantity of milk and water, morning and evening, with hay to feed on in the day-time; at noon they were fed with a little oats and bran equally mixed, allowing half a peck to a dozen calves. At two months old they were fed only in the morning with milk and water; they had hay to feed on in the day-time, and at evening, instead of noon, had the same quantity of bran and oats with water to drink. They were fed in this manner until the middle of April, when they were turned to grass all day, and taken into a shed at evening, and fed with hay until there was plenty of grass and the weather grew warm. Such of the calves as were weaned in March were continued to be fed with milk and water every morning until midsummer. All the calves are in good health and condition; and the society allowed the premium offered on that head the preceding year.—Bath Soc. Pap. Eng.

MANAGEMENT OF SHEEP.

The following is an extract from the New York Farmer. The writer appears to be no inconsiderable grower of wool in that state, whose experience and observations are certainly entitled to respect, beyond controversy, and may be of weighty importance to those who are in the way of raising sheep:—

“All my facts and deductions, thus far, I have drawn solely upon my own experience, and what has fallen under personal observation, and for the present shall continue to do.

“As my principal aim has been to direct attention to the vast importance of protecting sheep during the winter, and having but one more point to dwell upon, I will so far recapitulate as to name the advantages resulting therefrom, and which my experience has fully confirmed, viz. saving of life, prevention of disease, and the improvement of the quality. I am also highly gratified in being able now to add one more, and, especially in a pecuniary point of view, of the highest importance, viz. increased weight of fleece. My shearing previous to 1836, my sheep have yielded only from 2 lbs. 7 oz. to 2 lbs. 9 oz. per head. This I attributed to no other cause than the season's being colder or milder. The winter of 1836 my sheep were duly protected, and the yield was an average of 2 lbs. 10 oz. per head.

THE FOOD OF MAN.

A Summary of the Native Countries of our most Familiar Plants.

The potato is a native of South America, and is still found wild in Chili, Peru, and Monte Video. In its native state the root is small and bitter. The first mention of it by European writers is in 1588—it is now spread over the world. Wheat and rye originated in Tartary and Siberia, where they are still indigenous (natural production). The only country where the oat is found wild is in Abyssinia, and thence may be considered a native. Maize or Indian corn is a native of Mexico, and was unknown in Europe until after the discoveries of Columbus. The bread-fruit tree is a native of the South Sea islands, particularly Otaheite. Tea is found a native nowhere except in China and Japan, from which countries the world is supplied. The cocoa-nut is a native of most equinoctial countries. Coffee is a native of Arabia Felix, but is now spread into both the East and West Indies. The best coffee is brought from Mocha, in Arabia, whence about fourteen millions of pounds are annually exported. St. Domingo furnishes from sixty to seventy millions of pounds yearly. All the varieties of the apple are derived from the crab-apple, which is found native in most parts of the world. The peach is derived from Persia, where it still grows in a native state, small, bitter, and with poisonous qualities. Tobacco is a native of Mexico and South America, and lately one species has been found in New Holland. Tobacco was first introduced into England from North Carolina in 1586, by Walter Raleigh. Asparagus was brought from Asia; cabbage and lettuce from Holland; horse-radish from China; rice from Ethiopia; beans from the East Indies;—onions and garlic are natives of various places, both Asia and Africa. The sugar-cane is a native of China, and the art of making sugar from it has been practised from the remotest antiquity.

BOTS IN HORSES.

When a horse has bots, it may often be known by his biting his sides; when he has many, they often throw him into great pain, and he lies down, rolls, and, if not cured soon, dies. When it is believed that a horse has bots, by the above symptoms, give a pint of sweetened milk, which the bots are fond of; and they will let go their hold on the horse, and feast on the milk. Immediately give the horse a small quantity of oats or other provender, in which put two thirds of a common fig of tobacco pulverized. If he refuses the provender thus mixed, steep the same quantity of tobacco in a pint of boiling or warm water until the strength is out, as we say; then put in enough cold water so that the whole will fill a common junk bottle, and turn it into the horse. When it reaches the bots, it kills them, as all will believe who have ever spit tobacco-juice on a worm or similar insect. The horse in less than twenty hours will void all his bots. There is no mistake in this, though no patent has been obtained. (The writer would not have it tried on an old, poor horse, in the fall, or first of winter, for he would certainly recover, to the damage of his owner.) If one worth curing is affected with bots, and the symptoms are severe, never stop for the milk, but in with the tobacco—this is the kill-all. Me. Farmer.

AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION OF MASSACHUSETTS.

In order to provide for a representation of the citizens of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, founded upon principles of equality, a census of the ratable polls in each city, town, and district, shall be taken on the first day of May, and returned into the secretary's office in the year 1837, and every tenth year thereafter; and each town or city having 300 ratable polls may elect one representative, and for every 450 ratable polls in addition to the first 300, one representative more. Any town having less than 300 ratable polls shall be represented thus:—The whole number of ratable polls at the last preceding decennial census of polls shall be multiplied by 10 and divided by 300; such town may elect one representative as many years in 10 as 300 is contained in the product aforesaid. Any city or town having polls enough to elect one or more representatives, having polls beyond the surplus number by multiplying by 10 and dividing by 450, such city or town may elect one additional one as many years in 10 as 450 is contained aforesaid. Any two or more towns or districts, by consent of a majority of the legal voters at a legal meeting in each of said towns and districts, called for that purpose, and held previous to the first day of July in the year in which the decennial census of polls be taken, may form themselves into a representative district, to continue until the next decennial census.

SPECULATION.—A FACT.

Not long since, a friend of ours, a merchant in this city, was hailed in the street by a tall, rough-looking fellow, very plainly dressed in linsey-woolsey, cow-hide boots and slouched hat, who accosted him with—

"Halloo, there, mister, I say; aint your name _____?"

"That is my name, sir," replied the merchant.

"Well, how d'ye do?—'spose you don't know me, though."

"I do not recollect having seen you before."

"Well, 'spose not; but what I was goin to say, was, haint you got an eighty acre lot in Wisconsin, — county, eh!"

"Yes, I believe I do own a lot there."

"Well, now, perhaps you'd like to sell that acre lot?"

"Well, sir, I am in a hurry, do you wish to buy it?"

"Well, now, I don't know—what do you ask for it?"

"Two thousand dollars, sir."

"Teu thou—ten thousand dollars!—no, you're joking?"

"If you wish to purchase, sir, you know my price."

"Well, now, wouldn't you like to take nineteen hundred, if you could get it,—eh?"

"Why, sir, who will give it?" asked the merchant, eagerly, (for he had bought only a few months since at the government price.)

"Well, will you take it?—that's what I want to know."

"Yes, sir, I will take nineteen hundred."

"Make out your papers, then," said the stranger; "I've got the money—here's witnesses to the bargain;" and so saying, he drew from his capacious pocket a large bag, labelled "SHOT," from which he counted out the rhino, and took his deed, evidently well pleased with his bargain.

"You seem pleased with the trade, sir," said the merchant.

"Well, I guess I might as well," said the stranger.

"Why," returned the merchant, "have you seen the lot?"

"Well, I guess I have."

"Is the land remarkably good?" continued the merchant, supposing he had been trading with a green-horn.

"It'll do," said the buyer.

"What is it worth?" said the seller.

"Well, I don't know what it's worth, but I've dug 'bout ten thousand dollars worth of lead ore out on't a'ready—I can't tell how much more I'll get;" and with a broad laugh, he stuffed the deed into his pocket, and left our chap-fallen friend to consider how much lead ore the balance of his "eighty acre lot in Wisconsin" might possibly contain.

JACK FROST.

Jack Frost, Jack Frost,
You're certainly lost,
To come along, this summer;
So you'd better go home,
As quick as you come,
You're a very sorry comer.

From my garden you wish,
To take a dish

Of greens, to make your dinner—

'Tis mine, 'tis mine,

That cucumber vine;

Then let it alone, you sinner.

The squash and bean

Can just be seen,

From their small hillocks peeping,

While you're bent on evil,

And so uncivil,

To nip them as they're creeping.

The verdant bed

You change to red,

And murder the watermelon,

And bustle around,

And cover the ground,

And kill the whole, you felon.

But the onion and pea,

Peep up to see

What havoc you are making;

And show their sheen

Of leaves, dark green,

Neither nipt with cold nor shaking.

By the powers, by the powers,

If you touch those flowers,

Or bite that watermelon, (bowers,

Or nip the leaves of my walks and

I'll treat you like a felon.

Then fly away

From my garden gay,

Nor come till colder weather,

But northward go,

Till your brother snow,

And you, can come together.

LINES WRITTEN ON A JURY-BOX.

This box contains a man of wit,
A man of sense, a man not fit,
A man of strength, a man of place,
A man quite void of every grace,
A man of rank, a man of none,
A man who'd rather be at home,
A man of luck, a man of taste,
A man who would his country waste;
These men, when sworn, a jury make,
To clear up many a sad mistake.

A Curious Fact.—An antiquary in Boston states, in the Daily Advertiser, as a fact respecting the birth of Dr. Franklin, that his mother attended church on the morning of the 17th of January, 1706, joined in the communion service, it being sacrament day, at the Old South, and after service, was delivered of a son, who was carried into meeting in the afternoon, and baptized by the name of Benjamin, "the son of my right hand." It appears he was born in a house in Milk Street opposite the Old South, on which site now stands the furniture warehouse of Davis and Brown. Benjamin F. was the tenth son, and the youngest son for five generations.

THE FARMER'S SONG.

Away with grandeur, pomp, and gold,
Away with childish ease; [hold,
Give me but strength my plough to
And I'll find means to please.

'Tis sweet to toil for those we love—
My wife and darling boys,
Both tend to make my labor prove
The sweetness of my joys.

The sweetest morsel I procure,
When labor makes it sweet,
Is eaten with a taste more pure
Than meats that monarchs eat.

'Tis mine—yes, 'tis my happy lot,
From cares and avarice free,
To own but this secluded cot,
Sweet friends and liberty.

Now tell me, all ye gouty train,
Who have what fortune gives,
Is not the cheerful country swain
The happiest man that lives?

WHY DON'T HE COME?

Why don't he come? He promised me
He surely would be here,
And Pa and Ma are out to tea—
For once the coast is clear.

I wonder what he wants to say!
When last his leave he took,
He asked me twice at home to stay—
I wonder how I look!

Oh dear! I'm almost out of breath!
Suppose he asks? what then?
I'll certainly be scared to death,
I'm so afraid of men.

I think I'll have him though, at last—
But first I'll answer no—
For many a girl, by hurrying fast,
Outstrips her tardy beau.

Oh, here he comes—his steps I hear;
And now he'll soon begin!
*I would not for the world appear
In haste to let him in!*

In a late trial in England, wherein an injured lady sought damages for a breach of promise of marriage, the counsel for the defendant observed, that his opponent had painted the case in such glowing colors, as, he was sure, would astonish the lady herself, if she heard it; that it reminded him of an anecdote of Lord Erskine, when at the bar, who, being engaged for the plaintiff in an action for an assault, stated the case so feelingly that his client burst into tears. "What are you crying for, you fool?" said Erskine to him. "Oh," replied the weeper, "I did not think I had been half so ill treated until I heard your speech."

A LITTLE MAID.—A LITTLE BALLAD.

There was a little maid,
Who wore a little bonnet;
And she had a little finger
With a little ring upon it.
She screwed her little waist
To such a little size,
That it made her little blood
Rush to her little eyes.

This pretty little maid
Had a pretty little beau,
Who wore a little hat,
And gloves as white as snow.
He said his little heart
Was in a little flutter—
That he loved the little maid,
And no one else but her.

She smiled a little smile,
When he breathed his little vows;
And he kissed her little hand,
With many little bows,
By little and by little
Her little heart did yield,
Till little tears and sighs
Her little fears revealed.

A little while—alas!
And her little beau departed,
With all his little vows,
And left her broken-hearted.
Now, all ye little maids,
A moral I will give you;
Don't trust to little men;
They surely will deceive you.

WHITE PAPER.—A SIMILE.

Observe the maiden, innocently sweet;
She's fair white paper, an unsullied sheet,
On which the happy man, whom fate ordains,
May write his name and take her for his pains.

A little girl was lately complaining to a friend, that she had a cold, and was sadly plagued in her lips by chaps. "Friend," said Obadiah, "thee should never suffer the chaps to come near thy lips."

'To a T.'—A grocer, wishing to be a little odd in regard to a sign, caused two letters, T. T., to be painted on his shutter, the one green and the other black. Not long after, some person, observing it, inquired what it meant. "Why, you goose," said the trader, "it's green tea and black tea!"

An agent, soliciting subscribers for a book, showed the prospectus to a farmer, who, after reading one dollar in boards, and one dollar twenty-five cents in sheep, declined subscribing, as he might not have boards nor sheep on hand when called upon for payment.

III. Quest. Let ABC represent a triangle, whose perpendicular and hypothenuse are respectively 4 and 7: Then,
 $AB = \sqrt{AC^2 - BC^2} = \sqrt{7^2 - 4^2} = \sqrt{33} =$
 $5,74456 +$. Now, the triangles
ABC and DEC are similar;
therefore, AC:BC::DE:EC
and AB:AC::DE:DC

MATHEMATICAL QUESTIONS.

I. The fractions $\frac{2}{3}$ and $\frac{1}{4}$ are such that their difference is equal to the sum of their cubes; to determine other fractions having the same proportions. P. B., jr.

II. A new mathematical question, by J. H.:—A and B. bought a cheese of equal thickness, its diameter 20 inches;
they gave 3 dollars for it; A. paid 1 dollar and 30 cents, B. paid the remainder.
It is required to divide it between them by a cord line, in proportion to what each one paid. J. H.

III. I sold a piece of cloth for £56, and gained as much per cent. as the cloth cost me. Query, the price by common arithmetic? Also, a rule for the solution. D.B.E.

A TABLE

For foretelling the Weather, through all the Lunations of each Year, forever.

This table and the accompanying remarks are the result of many years actual observation; the whole being constructed on a due consideration of the attraction of the sun and moon, in their several positions respecting the earth, and will, by simple inspection show the observer what kind of weather will most probably follow the entrance of the moon into any of its quarters, and that so near the truth as to be seldom or never found to fail.

If the new moon, the first quarter, the full moon, or the last quarter, happens	IN SUMMER.	IN WINTER.
Between midnight and 2 in the morning,	Fair.	Hard frost, unless the wind is S. or W.

At 12 o'clock at noon, and 2, P. M.	Very rainy.	Snow or rain.
Between 2 and 4, P. M.	Changeable.	Fair and mild.
— 4 and 6, "	Fair.	Fair.
— 6 and 8, "	Fair, if wind N. W.	Fair and frosty, if wind is N. or N. E.
— 8 and 10, "	Rainy if S. or S. W.	Rain or snow, if S. or S. W.
— 10 and midnight,	Ditto.	Ditto.
	Fair.	Fair and frosty.

Observations.—1. The nearer the time of the moon's change, first quarter, full and last quarter, are to mindight, the fairer will the weather be during the seven days following.

2. The space for this calculation occupies from ten at night till two next morning.

3. The nearer to mid day or noon, the phases of the moon happen, the more foul or wet weather may be expected during the next seven days.

4. The space for this calculation occupies from ten in the forenoon to two in the afternoon. These observations refer principally to the summer, though they affect spring and autumn nearly in the same ratio.

5. The moon's change, first quarter, full and last quarter, happening during six of the afternoon hours, i. e. from four to ten, may be followed by fair weather; but this is mostly dependent on the wind, as is noted in the table.

6. Though the weather, from a variety of irregular causes, is more uncertain in the latter part of autumn, the whole of winter, and the beginning of spring, yet, in the main, the above observations will apply to those periods also.

7. To prognosticate correctly, especially in those cases where the wind is concerned, the observer should be within sight of a good vane, where the four cardinal points of the heavens are correctly placed.

The above table was originally formed by Dr. Herschell, and is now published with some alterations founded on the experience of Dr. Adam Clark.

BOOKS FOR SCHOOLS AND ACADEMIES.

WORCESTER'S READING BOOKS.

I. A PRIMER OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

II. A SECOND BOOK OF READING AND SPELLING.

III. A THIRD BOOK OF READING AND SPELLING, with simple Instructions for avoiding Common Errors.

IV. A FOURTH BOOK OF LESSONS FOR READING, with Rules and Instructions.

From Ebenezer Bailey, Principal of the Young Ladies' High School, Boston; Author of "Young Ladies' Class Book," and "First Lessons in Algebra."

"I have used Worcester's series of reading books in my school ever since they were published, and regard them as among the most valuable works of the kind with which I am acquainted."

From the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Advocate, and Nassau Gazette, of August 2, 1837.

"Amidst the great diversity of School Books that have been published, parents have often great difficulty in making a selection for their children. We have ourselves been much puzzled on this point; but have at last, after considerable search, discovered what we consider as decidedly the best elementary reading books ever published. We refer to WORCESTER'S four books of Reading and Spelling. We have examined these books attentively; and cannot refrain from expressing our sincere conviction that they are every way worthy of patronage. There are two things in particular, which, in our opinion, preëminently distinguish Mr. W.'s books over all others. These are, 1st, the peculiar adaptation of the lessons, and the method of their induction, to the minds of the children; and 2dly, their entire freedom from the inculcation of any sentiment or principle not precisely in accordance with the purest scriptural rule. * * * * *

"Worcester's Fourth Book should be in the hands of every adult in the country. There is no person, however well informed in his mind, or polished or correct in his deportment, that might not gain much valuable information therefrom.

"We have given this extended notice of these books, considering that, by so doing, we are merely performing our duty."

THE POLITICAL CLASS BOOK, designed to instruct the Higher Classes in Schools in the Origin, Nature, and Use of Political Power. By WILLIAM SULLIVAN, LL. D.

"The library of no citizen is complete where this work is wanting, and if the shelf contains no more than a Bible and an Almanac, the householder should not attend a town meeting until he has at least read the Political Class Book."—Massachusetts Spy.

THE MORAL CLASS BOOK; or the Law of Morals, derived from the Created Universe and from Revealed Religion; intended for Schools as well as private Reading. By WILLIAM SULLIVAN, LL. D.

"The American and British public have united in pronouncing this the best Manual of Moral Philosophy ever prepared for young minds; we would recommend it most warmly as a text-book for schools and closet scholars, and believe that its general use would be productive of much good to the rising generation."—Mercantile Journal.

AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE ON GEOMETRY, simplified for Beginners not versed in Algebra. Part II. containing Solid Geometry, with its Application to the Solution of Problems. By F. J. GRUND.

At a meeting of the School Committee of the city of Boston, Mr. Grund's Geometry was recommended as a suitable book to be used in the Public Schools.

PHOST.

PARLEY'S SCHOOL BOOKS.

I. PARLEY'S ARITHMETIC; with numerous Engravings.

From the Principal of the Young Ladies' Seminary, Exeter, N. H.

"I am sorry I have not had the benefit of 'Parley's Arithmetic' in years past. I have never seen any thing bearing the name of Arithmetic half so attractive. Children will have Arithmetic at the outset, if they have the good fortune to begin with Peter Parley."

"It is an excellent little work."—Northampton Courier.

II. PARLEY'S BOOK OF THE UNITED STATES, Geographical, Political, and Historical; with Comparative Views of other Countries. Illustrated by 40 ENGRAVINGS, designed and executed in the best manner, expressly for this work, and Eight Maps from NEW STEEL PLATES.

This book forms an 18mo. volume of upwards of 200 pages, to which is added about 1000 questions on the matter in the body of the work; together with several hundred questions on the Maps.

"An excellent compendium—It contains, in a condensed form, a great amount of useful information. The plan pursued throughout the book is, in one important respect, superior to that of almost any other similar work. We refer to the continual comparisons made between the objects described, and similar objects in other countries,—thereby showing the resemblance and differences which exist between this and other portions of the earth. The attention of the young reader is thus kept more continually awake, and an additional interest is given to every part of the book. It is well fitted for the school-room or juvenile library."—Providence Courier.

III. THE FIRST BOOK OF HISTORY, OR HISTORY ON THE BASIS OF GEOGRAPHY, (Comprehending the Countries of the Western Hemisphere,) with sixty Engravings, from original Designs, and sixteen Maps of the different sections of the United States and the various countries of the Western Hemisphere, executed in the most beautiful manner on steel plates.

"This is decidedly the best historical work for children we have ever met with. It is filled with ideas instead of dates. Let every child study this book three months in his own way, and he will have a better knowledge of the history and geography of his country, than is often acquired by spending three years in the senseless operation of committing to memory page after page of the tiresome treatises in common use."—Brandon Telegraph.

IV. THE SECOND BOOK OF HISTORY; (Comprehending the Countries of the Eastern Hemisphere,) with many Engravings, and sixteen Maps, from steel plates, of the different countries.

"Those who have used the 'First Book of History,' will need no persuasion to use this also; it is on the same perspicuous plan, and well adapted to the abilities and wants of the young historian."—Evening Gazette.

V. THE THIRD BOOK OF HISTORY; By the same author and on the same plan; Comprehending Ancient History in connection with Ancient Geography; with Maps and Engravings.

"This is an excellent work. It contains an admirable synopsis of the rise, and progress, and downfall, of the Roman Empire, and is written in a familiar style, which, in connection with the many remarkable incidents which it embodies, must make it particularly interesting to children."—Mercantile Journal.

From the Principal of the High School, Woodstock, Vt.

"I must say, that if any work upon history, of the same extent, is deserving public approbation for its real merits, it is the 'First, Second, and Third Books of History,' by Peter Parley."
